Q: SQLite Oracle replication via JDBC We are going to setup replication between two databases (SQLite and Oracle). We have an application that execute SQL and insert data into the target database (Oracle). I have found the Oracle JDBC API that allow replication using the Oracle JDBC driver. Our application is already using the SQLite JDBC driver to connect to the SQLite database and insert or update data into the target database (SQLite). Is there a driver to Oracle that is compatible with the SQLite JDBC driver?

EDIT : I am reading the Oracle's documentation but I couldnt find anything regarding replication. A: I couldnt find anything regarding replication. It doesn't matter what the documentation says. You don't talk to Oracle using a JDBC connection. You talk to it using its SQL*Plus interface, or JDBC interface, or PL/SQL interface, or its own Admin (RMAN), or whatever you want. out that her husband, Christopher had been beating her for years. Naturally, I was disgusted and horrified, but at the same time, I couldn't believe it. He was an extremely intelligent man, and successful on many levels. It baffled me that he could be so evil. I couldn't understand it. I told her I was going to call the police and take care of the situation. She said she would be proud of me. She let me go, and she called their counselor at the time to meet her at the trailer. When they met, she told him the truth. The counselor said Chris would have to be removed from the home. This was devastating to her; she didn't want to have her kids taken away from her. She told the counselor her story, but he didn't believe her. He told her that she needed to get her kids back to see if she could convince them to get him help. The only way she could do that was to tell her kids that Chris was in jail. She did this, and she was unsuccessful in her attempt to get Chris help. She called me because she knew her story would sound unbelievable, and she wanted someone she could trust to tell the truth. As for her, she was emotionally bankrupted. She did what she could in what was left of her mind, and she told Chris that his "inappropriate actions were hurting her" ♦
