the lethal mutant of mouse adenovirus type 3.
A temperature sensitive mutant of mouse adenovirus type 3 was isolated by plaque hybridization to detect DNA sequences deleted from the viral genome. Restriction analysis of viral DNA isolated at the permissive and nonpermissive temperatures and of plasmids carrying the viral DNA sequences showed that a recombination event had occurred between the DNA fragments coding for the hexon and penton base of the viral genome. The recombination introduced a stop codon into the DNA sequence coding for the major capsid protein and a mutation in the new DNA sequence coding for the hexon. The mutation in the hexon gene changes the nucleotide sequence which is important for recognition of the host cell by the virus,
